Michael Tracy: Brasilia Connections

The American saxophonist Michael Tracy brings to Mundo Vivo Galeria a special show that celebrates the meeting between Brazilian music and jazz. With over five decades of performing as a performer and educator, Tracy has built a remarkable international career, performing and teaching in multiple countries and solidifying him self as a true bridge between musical cultures. Founder of the Brazilian Music Workshop, he returns to Brazil with a reputation that reflects this deep and plural experience.

The presentation also marks the opening of the Brazilian Music Workshop, a festival that brings together American musicians in the capital for an immersion in Brazilian music. On stage, Tracy will be joined but a remarkable team: Moisés Alves (trumpet), Misael Silvestre (piano), Hamilton Pinheiro (bass) and Pedro

Almeida (drums) in a lineup the promises refined interaction, improvisation and sonic identity.

The show also features the special participation of singer Joana Duah, a Brazilian artist with an international career, recognized for her versatility and remarkable presence in jazz and world music. Together, the musicians lead an evening that united tradition and contemporary, exploring the many possibilities of dialogue between jazz and Brazilian music.
